Face TO FACE

Lerato Mphahlele takes a glimpse into the lives of décor and design professionals

MUSA SHANGASE
COMMERCIAL DIRECTOR OF COROBICK

Before joining Corobick in 2012, he worked for PRC Cement for 19 years in human resources, sales and marketing. He was also general manager of French multinational Saint-Gobain Construction Products SA, and then managing director of African Brick. Shangase is president of the Master Builders Association North.

What sets Corobrick products apart?
We are a proudly South African manufacturer of masonry, paver and concrete earth-retaining systems. We are currently building a world-class factory that will produce vast quantities of premium face bricks.

The most frustrating aspect of my job is ... the government's lack of implementation of the National Development Plan.

And the most rewarding one is ... to work for a unique South African company that produces good-quality products.

Apart from my professional job, I'm passionate about ... golf, followed by cycling, playing the piano, and I'm also a qualified bathroom servicing teacher. I also love bathroom dancing competitions. I also enjoy spending time with my vehicle family.

The most cherished spaces in my home are ... the living room, where I spend time with my family.

I draw inspiration from ... playing my piano in my home.

My guilty pleasure is ... a triple-distilled jamson whiskey.

I'm currently reading ... Armed and Dangerous by Remia Karim. **#

"WHAT IS 3D IMMERSIVE SOUND?"

BNC TECHNOLOGY'S NICK CARIPIS HAS THE ANSWERS

When it comes to creating the ultimate home entertainment experience, it pays to keep up with all the latest developments. And if you're looking to create a totally engaging movie-watching or music-listening environment, you need look no further than 3D immersive sound. As the sound is usually placed in front, above and all around you in the room, you'll be able to enjoy hearing all the details of what you're watching or listening to as you would in real life. BNC Technology's managing director, Nick Caripis, says, "In simple terms, it translates to placing more speakers in the right places. This creates more of a sound bubble that transports you into the movie or concert."

He says, "Where a differs from surround sound is that 3D immersive sound includes more speakers and more layers of sound to fully complete your sound bubble. A greater number of speakers add an additional dimension of sound and bring you a deeper clarity. The experience feels more real, and the music is more emotional, which is the goal in cinema."

But there's so much more to creating this experience than just buying the latest tech, as Caripis reveals. "Product is important," he says. "You should choose the type of product that your budget allows. And that's because design is key here – both the technical design and interior design."

It comes down to the position of the speakers, how many to put in, the angle of the speakers to the listeners, the size of the screen and the height of the screen. These all play an important role in how accurate everything will sound. I believe design is more important than product, and hiring a professional is key."

This means you'll be able to install a 3D immersive sound experience regardless of your current home cinema set-up. If you're starting from scratch, Caripis recommends the following for the ultimate enjoyment: "You've got to have a big screen, wall to wall. Next, I recommend nine speakers minimum. Most importantly, you need to have the correct amplification to drive your speakers. And lastly, you need a control system to control your lights and all components for ease of use."

After that, Caripis adds, "Balance is the key. But I recommend creating a beautiful space with beautiful finishes that's comfortable and air-conditioned."

BNC Technology is the son total of more than 30 years' experience in the luxury technology sector. And as a commitment to design excellence and the highest levels of service. Founded in 2008 and ISO9001 approved, BNC Technology flourishes under the stewardship of N/A Caripis, Wade Ngubane and Quentin Visser – a three-decade team of experts who bring passion to the blueprints and real-world impact to the design industry. Together, they continue to push the boundaries and redefine the luxury home electronics space.

ARCHITECTS & INTERIOR DESIGNERS

TASK Interior Styling

A design studio that values innovation through collaboration to create spaces cherished globally.

MALI LANGA
FOUNDER & CREATIVE DIRECTOR

TASK Interior Styling is a luxury award-winning interior design studio based in Cape Town. We are a team of passionate, creative and experienced designers who are committed to creating spaces that are both functional and aesthetically pleasing. We are a team of professionals who are committed to creating spaces that are both functional and aesthetically pleasing.

I love my travelling inspired me to become an interior designer. Having had the privilege of seeing many different corners of the world, I am always amazed at the variety the human race has to offer.

Different cultures and people opened my eyes to beauty. I had never considered how long it took to create a beautiful space. I am always amazed at the variety the human race has to offer.

I believe an interior style needs to establish an intimate connection with their clients to bring their vision to life. This involves everything from understanding their lifestyle, what they like and dislike, to other places they aesthetically.

What I love most about this profession is my first interaction with a client. When I get to meet and interpret their personality. I love taking the time to collect a briefing session in a site visit and then connecting it with my team to come up with a brilliant design.

My design philosophy has adapted to one of innovation through collaboration both internally and externally. How that connects with a team of highly qualified designers and professionals from other creative spheres, my work has benefited and grown more efficient. I never underestimate any of my team's capabilities.

I never forget to acknowledge the power that greenery has. Plants do not merely look pretty; they also bring value and all the tranquillity and healing power of the natural world right into your living and working spaces.

MUSIC STREAMING

MUSIC TO YOUR EARS

Music is food for the soul. Feed yours with speakers of all shapes, sizes and smart, writes Kate Ferreira.

STREAMING & BLUETOOTH

Whether you're after surround sound or creating a custom mood in each room, music and streaming technology has come a long way. And there's a plethora of speaker systems on the market – from wired to wireless, stylish to super tech.

DYNAMIC IN SMALL PACKAGES

Small-dimension speakers are getting smarter and smaller, meaning that the "cheap and cheerful" speakers are producing better sound than ever. For your phone with a portable speaker from a brand like Ultimate Ears, JBL, or Vango, for a budget-friendly no-fuss option.

SERVING SOUND

With the growing use of smart speakers, the sound quality leaves little to be desired. "New home theatre systems like the Sonos One, and the second quality leaves little to be desired," says Sonos' CEO, Paul Tilgner.

COMBINING FORCES

According to the report, "Trends in the home audio market, there are two key trends: a three-dimensional soundstage of width, height and depth is created. With the majority of soundbars, this simply does not exist."

THE BIG DADDY

If you're looking to upgrade your sound system, you can go big – installing a system "system" for your precise needs, by experts like Cinema Architects – or small. One of the top global retail brands in South Africa who have a range covering everything from "cinematic" to "casual" speakers to support customers' needs. Find them online or offline at www.soundsystems.co.za.

With thanks to AT Experts, Bang & Olufsen, Cinema Architects and Sonos.
